EU PROJECTS IN CROATIA

Results of the CARDS 2004 Adult Education Project

The final results of the highly successful CARDS 2004 Adult Education Project were presented in mid-April. The employees of the Agency stressed as one of their greatest achievements the establishment of a database that will consolidate the data on adult education institutions and their programs at the national level. In Croatia only 2,1 percent of population from 25 to 60 is involved in some kind of adult Education, lower percentages from EU 27 has only Greece, Bulgaria and Romania. The Head of the Delegation of European Commission to the Republic of Croatia, Vincent Degert, noted that the CARDS 2004 project was designed to support the development of a modern and flexible education system that will keep step with the demands of the European labour market and the principle of life-long learning.

"Old Tower - New Bridges" Project Presented

The presentation of the EIDHR (European Instrument for Democracy and Human Rights) peace-building project "Old Tower - New Bridges" in the Zadar hinterland: Benkovac, Obrovac, Islam Grčki and Islam Latinski and screening of a short film titled "The Hero from the Border" took place in mid-March in the EU Information Center. The main objective of the project is to bring about sustainable peace through the establishment of good practices in interpersonal relations. The project is focused on connecting citizens and the local government for the purpose of civil society development in the local community. After the presentation of project activities, a short animated documentary was shown by a Japanese director Isao Koshimura, "The Hero from the Border", which depicts Stojan Janković, the ancestor of the writer Vladan Desnica.
